Worksheet 4.1: Finding Your Body Clues

Let’s practice being body detectives! Using a big piece of paper from your therapist or the outline below, try to write down the body clues you have had for some emotions.

Some kids find it helpful to use different colors for different emotions (for example, red for anger, blue for sadness, yellow for happiness, and green for fear).